Where We've Been...

During Religion we have been learning the order and parts of the Mass. We have been working on the author's viewpoint during Reading class. In Math, division of large numbers has kept us very busy. We have finished up learning about the early North American explorers in Social Studies. During Science, we have been learning about animal interactions in their environments.

...and Where We're Going

During Religion class we will be learning about prayer. In Reading we will be discussing the skill of drawing conclusions. We will be learning about different types of graphs and statistics in Math. In Social Studies, we will be learning about British colonization of North America. During Science, we will be studying how animal populations affect each other and the cycles of life.
